MR. C. C. CURRY

Is our authorized agent for the sale and delivery of the Democrat in Jeffersonville. Our subscribers will please call on Mr. Curry for any information in regard to it. Any advertisements or job work wanted by the citizens of Jeffersonville, if intrusted to Mr. Curry's care, will be promptly attended to.

☞The Louisville Courier is in distress because the "Third party," as it styles it, is not willing to yield up unconditionally, because it didn't get the most votes in two State elections.

That any one should stick to principle while in the minority is a mystery incomprehensible to the Journal and Courier, for with them on the majority and the offices hang all the law and the profits. Nothing but the stringency of military law, and the Courier's inability to comprehend the situation, ever kept it in the Confederacy. Otherwise the thing on wheels would have struck for the north star after the fall of Bowlingreen, and been going northward yet.

The Courier, while in the Confederacy, learned to play upon that famous musical instrument of guerrillas, the loot, with charm exceeding that with which Arion magnetized the dolphins. The effect of this strange music is, that the musician fancies that everybody else's property belongs to him, and he "corrals" it at once. The Courier, that has become a harper, to which Harper's Weakly is a circumstance, tinkled on its instrument until it was inspired by the idea of stealing the name of democracy and swearing ownership.

We have taken two appeals that went against us, but as we are confident of our title, we shall not cease until we have recovered our entire, undivided property. We know when this is done, the majority having gone against the Courier, its fondness for loot will bring it over with the spoils. In the meanwhile, we call the Courier's attention to the fact that a majority is often wrong and a minority right—a proposition which some of its experiences will hardly allow it to gainsay.

If the content was only in Kentucky; if the sky, like a stout crystal bowl, shut down exactly over Kentucky, and fenced out all the outer world, we might be excused for following the multitude to do evil that hurt only ourselves; but when the external States are all around us, and can impose some of their wickedness on us, in addition to our own, we would rather see if it couldn't be prevented.

The Courier, therefore, had better guard its ill-gotten gains, for the National Democrats will certainly take an appeal to a higher court; to the general convention of the Democratic party.

Neither the whole world nor the Democratic party stops at the border line of Kentucky, as the Courier supposes, and it is just as well to know if the national party considers dissension and Democracy convertible terms. Of course it does not, and the Courier, as the "emaciated and squalid little lunatic" it ingeniously describes, and whose other peculiarity was to think all the world crazy but himself, can cease to threaten the race of man with his thunderbolts, as he creeps in the columns of the Courier, and sneaks quietly to his small senses—he hasn't far to go—and conclude that Democracy means the most intense and practical Unionism.

The Courier doesn't know how these murderous malcontents (the Democrats) can hope for success, success being its god and only guide to right. We expect it is because they know the entire sentiment of the nation is with them, and because they have sense enough to know there is somebody in the world besides themselves.

They have not gone through the farcical expense of electing men to office, at a time when representation was needed, who were not allowed to take their seats in Congress, nor will they join a party that thus spends its crazy basis of delusion, in chips

"Dancing [illegible]
And [illegible]
Or bottomless buckets, which amounts to the same thing.

☞There is one Pope in this country who is not infallible, though he thinks he is. He is a military man, and gravely lays down the proposition that, as the people ought to do the reconstructing, therefore no speaker or newspaper who advises them against one peculiar form of reconstructing ought to be allowed to express opinions on the subject—a prose version of Byron's profane lines:

"There is the rub,
Which you may [illegible] as you may [illegible] —."

Napoleon reconstructed France on that plan, permitting everybody perfect freedom to vote for the emperor, or perfect exile if they didn't. The example has been since given. We read of a certain Governor who declared that the citizens might vote for the ticket on which he was a candidate, but the one headed by a distinguished Union General was not a Union ticket, and could not be represented from his State in the Electoral College.

This is a queer republic we are living in. It is like those queer beings transmogrified in the kingdom of the Black Isles, as related in that voracious history of the Arabian Nights. They were half man, half marble. Our republic is, in the same way, is half republic and half despotism, with a number of satraps doing governments on their own hook, in the sense of the verb to "hook" or filch. Pope is about ripe for removal, and we think there is a chance for him to "turn out" better than Sheridan.

☞The Journal speaks of Major Gen. Pope as one who captured 14,000 stand of arms and 60,000 rebels after the evacuation of Corinth, and sent them to the President on half a sheet of paper. Pope has enough of iniquities to bear without shouldering that empty boast on him. Is it possible the Journal editor has not read the sharp correspondence on Pope's part between him and Halleck, wherein Pope charges Halleck directly with this falsehood, and the forgery of his name, and the latter does not deny it? Pope was bitter and peremptory, and Halleck sly and slinking. We think Pope should be acquitted of that charge.

ROBBERY BY THE SO CALLED.—The successful party propose to make Hawkins clerk of the Senate, and Rob. his assistant clerk.

Officers' and Soldiers' Meeting.

By reference to our paper, it will be seen that a meeting has been held in Barren county of the Kentucky officers and soldiers, to take into consideration the subject of the custody of the State flags. We published, in yesterday's Democrat, the proceedings of a similar meeting in Lexington. This movement is exciting considerable attention in the State, and while all reflecting men enter into the feelings of the gallant men who are reluctant to see the flags which they defended in so many battles pass under the care of those who are hostile to them, it is also accompanied with regret that action should be deemed necessary.

Our confidence in the State officers elected is such that, differing as widely with them as we do, we do not doubt that they would discharge the duty of custodian faithfully. It is reduced to a matter of pure sentiment—a sentiment which all men of just and honorable feelings are bound to respect.

We disregard altogether the political aspect which the movement necessarily takes, and look upon it simply as an individual question, and enter into the feelings of those who prefer that the flags should be under the care of those who sympathized with the Union in the struggle for its life, rather than that of those who sympathized with the Southern Confederacy.

As the meeting is to be held, we repeat our suggestion that, in so grave a matter, the utmost deliberation and calmness should be exercised, and nothing engendered that creates ill-feeling in the State. This we know is the desire of the gallant men engaged in the movement.

☞Tennessee is a spectacle of a State that has been alternately under rebel and Radical rule. Under the former the outrages were gross and ferocious. Union men were compelled to leave their homes and hide in the holes and clefts of the rocks from the organized banditti that hunted them like wolves, or to fly a weary, perilous journey, through dense woods and over sterile rocky hills, to seek the grateful shelter of generous Kentucky.

When the rebels were driven out the new regime that came in seem to have faithfully begun where the last government left off, and as the first had driven away, hung or shot all the Union men who were good for much, the last, not to be outdone, proceeded to hunt out all the Confederates or Southern sympathizers who might be valuable as citizens, and drive them away, or shoot them by order of militia captains.

By the combined assistance of both then the State was made unfit for honest men to live in, who left when they could afford to leave it, and Brownlaw's government proceeded to make permanent that happy condition of affairs. The white race are an unmanageable, vexatious people, and to control them was out of the question. The black race, however, by nature and training, were docile and obedient, and it was at once resolved to call in their help to keep the State.

This was done. The Radicals managed the negro, and the negro the election, and all has gone in an amicable pleasant sort of take-all-you-can way, until Tennessee is like what General Phil. Sheridan said of Texas. He affirmed that if he owned Texas and—and Lucifer's sulphur works and brimstone quarry, he would rent out Texas and live in that place; but Texas is a paradise to Tennessee.

☞The Chicago Republican is striving to defeat the Northern Democratic party by saying it is identical with hogs Kentucky Democracy, and thus excite the hostility of the Northern people, whose votes are necessary to save the country. It is very ingeniously done, and will have its effect. Of course the statement is false. No two parties can be more antagonistic than true Democracy and the sham we have in this State under the name.

Of course, as this was intended to defeat the Northern Democracy, and is a powerful instrument to effect the intention, the Courier unites with its Radical ally, and asseverates that the two parties are the same. Considering the use the Radicals will make of it, if the Courier didn't wish to help them, it had much better have remained silent.

☞A Kentucky friend writes that he has a pair of game-chickens for us, and asks how he shall send them. Indeed we don't know. If he lived at the East, he might send them by Hatch's Express.

That pun looks like it was artificially hatched, if the chicken never was.

☞Col. Churchill is recommended as Secretary of State, under Governor Helm. Colonel Churchill is an accomplished gentleman, of high attainments, and would fill the office with credit and capacity.

JEFFERSON COUNTY FARMERS, ATTENTION.—We direct especial notice to the call in our advertising columns for a meeting of the farmers of Jefferson county at Walker's on Saturday afternoon. It is contemplated, we understand, to organize a club of gentlemen who will hold regular meetings for the discussion of agricultural topics, the reception of reports upon the crops and other matters of interest to the farming community. Nothing can be more evident than the importance and value of such an organization. The wealthy and intelligent farmers of Jefferson should not permit the project to fail. Fayette county has for a long while sustained an organization of this character with honor and usefulness. Shall the Beargrass gentry fall where the Elkhorn planters succeed?

A SPLENDID LEXINGTON COLT.—Our Nelson county friends who may visit the Bardstown fair to-day, and of course the entire community will be in attendance, will enjoy the pleasure of looking upon one of the finest specimens of horseflesh ever beheld. This is the celebrated Lexington colt owned by W. K. Thomas, Esq., of this city. He is said, by those posted in such matters, to be more perfectly bred and has more of the pure Lexington blood in his veins than any horse in Kentucky. We shall expect to see him return here garlanded with blue ribbons.

MEETING OF SOLDIERS TO-NIGHT.—There will be a meeting of ex-Federal soldiers at the courthouse to night, to appoint delegates to the State convention of soldiers, to be held in this city on the 26th instant, to appoint a custodian for the battle flags of the Kentucky regiments. This is a matter in which every soldier should feel himself personally interested. A full attendance is desired. Let every soldier who is proud of his services in the army attend, and urge upon his comrades the importance of attending this meeting.

PERSONAL.—Capt. Geo. W. Richardson, for many years the popular conductor on the Louisville and Lexington railroad, was in the city yesterday. He looks hale and hearty, and is farming in Brecklinridge county, in a neighborhood noted for big potatoes, fat babies and pretty girls.

SMALL TALK.

The Nashville Union is disgusted because a firm in that city has had a sign painted by a Louisville artist. It likewise is angered at a lawyer of that village for coming here and getting his cards printed.....The Boston Post says: "A capital execution for rape is very much needed just now." Well, sir, if you will come to Kentucky November 3d your laudable and pious wish shall be gratified. One James Love is to be hung in Maysville on that day.....The interior of the postoffice, really an architectural ornament to the city, has been rather dingy of late. But a corps of artists have been detailed, and were yesterday busily engaged in scraping away the accumulated dust preparatory to a brilliant coating of varnish.....Plash, plash, plash, through most of yesterday did the gentle rain fall. What boots it, though every one, if it does bring mud to our disgraceful streets, so that it speeds the busbandman's labors, sweetens the atmosphere and gives new life to verdure and flowers.....Dr. Llewellyn Powell, one of our most accomplished physicians, is lying dangerously ill at his residence, on Fourth street.....The crossing of the alley, in the rear of Mr. Rupert's residence, on Fifth street, is shameful. The slightest shower renders it impassable. Water stands in it at all seasons, save when it is filled with the blackest and foulest mud, and a lot of wallowing swine. Will Col. Dent, member from the Eighth ward, not see to it that his neighbors are no longer thus outraged?.....Clouds and rain all the day long yesterday, but the sun went to his rest in a canopy of glorious clouds..... The Nashville Banner is very eloquent upon the glories of its State. But the editor claims too much glory for Tennessee when he says: "We furnished the bar with its greatest advocate, Grundy." That great lawyer, orator and statesman of happy (Felix) name and memory first soared aloft in the realms of eloquence and fame here in Kentucky. We gave him his start in the race of life; we nurtured his young genius; we spred his pinions; we honored him at the beginning; we discovered his nascent genius. Tennessee could not restrain the boundless ambition and abilities of Felix Grundy, and so she gave him to the nation as we had given him to her..... We passed last evening a group of urchins of five and seven years, who were arranging for a match game of base ball—the stakes a watermelon. That reminds us that the Hercules have declined the challenge of the Dexter. The latter carried too much weight, besides the members of the former are sore, spavined, gallhitted, broken-winded, chafed and generally distressed over their late contest.....Col. Albert Fink, Superintendent of the Nashville railroad, is building a magnificent family residence at the corner of Sixth and Broadway, where the old Kaye mansion stood so long.

Death of Anderson Gray.

Fourteen years ago there appeared in Frankfort as a member of the lower house of the General Assembly a tall, stout, well-built, open-countenanced, genial gentleman from Grayson county. He soon became a general favorite with members of all parties, and added much to the conviviality of the outside sessions of the Legislature, and the hospitable society of the capital.

This person's name heads our article. Full of years, honored by the people among whom he was raised, loved by his immediate friends and kindred, he died on Saturday, August 17th, of typhus fever. Capt. Anderson Gray was first elected to the Legislature in 1853, and continued the representative of his county for six years. During this period he served his constituency with great fidelity. Subsequently upon two occasions he was elected doorkeeper of the House, continuing to increase in popularity. At the commencement of the war he raised a company for the Twenty-seventh Kentucky, served with the regiment for nearly a year; but being advanced in life, and discovering that his health would not permit him to take an active part in the service he resigned his commission.

Capt. Gray was always true to the Union and the Constitution. He was a Democrat of the "Old School," faithful to the long established principles of his party, and during the late canvass made several thrilling and effective speeches for Mr. Kinkead. Upon the stump he was noted for his soul-stirring eloquence, and his fund of apposite anecdote. He died at peace with the world, leaving malice toward none and charity toward all, in full communion with the Catholic church, of which he was a devoted member.

Eclipse of Jupiter's Moons Last Night.

The old thunderer of Olympus has seldom, since the first morning stars sang together, ever known aught of eclipse, even to himself or attendants, save, indeed, when Juno raised a wifely disturbance, or some roysterer of the skies, like Vulcan, took too much of the ambrosial nectar and broke the peace of the heavenly dominion. But last night there occurred one of those rare events in the history of this once god, but now serene planet. All of his satellites, or moons, suffered obscuration. The night was cloudy and not propitious for observations, but we stationed our astronomer upon the topmost skylight of the Democrat office, and he reports the following programme of this celestial freak: The planet rose at half-past seven, on time; but the sun having just set, his majesty was scarcely visible at that hour. At 7:11 the shadow of the third satellite passed on to the disc, as did the satellite itself at 8:14. The second phenomenon and the entry of the fourth satellite on the disc were not easily seen. The remaining eleven, however, were more observable, the performance not concluding until 1:51 this morning.

We commenced in badinage, but really these phenomena were very remarkable, beautiful, and occur only in the course of a great many years. Jupiter, unattended by his many moons, is a spectacle once in a life time.

Wolf Kahn Again in Trouble.

This well known individual is again in trouble, having been arrested yesterday by officers Needy and Shelly. It will be remembered that some time since, Kahn, with Abe Sales, and a notorious prostitute, was arrested upon the charge of arson, and that Sales was discharged and made Commonwealth's witness. His testimony was the main evidence against Kahn, and with his testimony that fiend in human shape, Wolf Kahn, had a fair chance of boarding for a time with Harry Todd, at Frankfort. Kahn was arrested this time for bribing Abe Sales to run off and not appear against him. The case will be heard in the City Court this morning.

AN OLD OFFENDER IN LIMBO.—Some months since Dick Smith was before the City Court upon the charge of burglariously entering two houses, and held to bail to answer, which bail he subsequently gave and left the city. At the time of his arrest, a lot of goods were found in his possession, which belonged to Judge Nicholas. Smith returned to this city yesterday morning, and was re-arrested and committed to jail by officer Wm. White.

JEFFERSONVILLE ITEMS.

[Reported for the Louisville Democrat.]
WEDNESDAY, August 21.

POLICE NEWS.

Our Police Court this morning proved rather uninteresting to the general congregation of loafers whose business it is to swell the quantity of material in making up an audience for this interesting institution.

Mr. Silas Veatch, a young gentleman of pugilistic propensities, undertook the contract of cleaning out the town generally, and Daddy Link was to be the first victim, but being unused to such assumptions, or giving way without a struggle, got slightly belligerent himself, and cooled the ardor of Mr. Veatch through the medium of a two-year-old club. The police came up about this time and took a drink of Link's best first, and Mr. V. afterwards. Mr. V. plead guilty to the charge preferred against him this morning, and went up to the tune of $21 70.

POSTPONED.

The concert which was to come off last night at Holmes & Thias' Hall was postponed until Friday night, owing to the inclemency of the weather. Look out for fun on that night, as this promises to be the finest affair of the season.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED.

Mr. Mike Redding met with an accident on yesterday which proved fatal. Mr. R. was engaged in teaming for some person at or near Morrow's kiln, about twelve miles above town, and, in driving through a gate, struck a post, which tumbled him out of the wagon, and, falling before the wheel, had no time to extricate himself and it passed over him, crushing him so severely that he died in a few minutes. An inquest was held over his body by Esquire Lewman, and a verdict rendered in accordance with the above facts. Mr. Redding leaves no family.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

We would most respectfully call the attention of our school trustees to the necessity of their employing for the full session a competent male teacher to act in the capacity of principal in said schools. Heretofore we have had only females in that line, and they are totally incompetent to govern the many wild lads placed under their charge. We know this to be a fact from our own observation, and know the absolute necessity for a change. We hope those having the matter in charge will carefully investigate the suggestions we have given and act accordingly.

EXCITEMENT.

Our town was thrown into a state of excitement to-day by a number of men making their appearance in the streets on horseback and in an excited condition. However, we were not long in ascertaining the cause. They proved to be a party of farmers from the neighborhood in which the negro attempted to outrage the person of two white ladies, an account of which we published in the Democrat of to-day. The party tracked the scoundrel to this city, and were just about to overhaul him, when he discovered his pursuers and jumped over a fence in the rear of Mr. Mile's garden, and so completely hid himself that up to this time he had not been captured. A large force was seeking diligently for the scoundrel at last accounts. We hope he may be caught.

FUN AHEAD.

We understand that a company of young gentlemen have secured the privilege of giving a grand entertainment, in the dancing line, on board the ferryboat John Shallcross, as she lays at the wharf undergoing repairs. As we are acquainted with the parties undertaking the job, we can safely promise one of the finest times that our citizens have ever had the privilege of enjoying. We will be on hand to see that things are fixed up right. As soon as the arrangements are completed we will give full particulars. Let everybody get ready and be there.

Arrest of a Cold-blooded Murderer—His Arrival in the City—Lodged in the New Albany Jail.

The 1 o'clock train from Nashville yesterday afternoon brought to this city Sheriff Fullenlove, of New Albany, and detective Larry Ryan, of the former city, having in custody Peter Carnes. The prisoner, at the close of the day on the 4th of July last, went to an old colored barber in New Albany, named Finley, who was just closing up his shop, and asked him to black his boots. Finley told him he could not just then as he was closing up, and wanted to have some of the 4th of July to himself. Carnes remarked, "can't you black my boots?" and drew his pistol and shot Finley through the heart. He was put in the New Albany jail and soon after broke out in company with four others, who were afterwards arrested, and got on the New Albany and Salem train for Mitchell. He was recognized by conductor Amos Rodgers and the mail agent who attempted to arrest him. In the scuffle to secure him Carnes tried to shoot them twice, but the pistol missed fire each time. He soon after made his escape from these parties, and made his way to Nashville where he has been stopping for two weeks.

Mr. Ryan has been on the lookout for Carnes since, and, in company with officer Starkley, found him in Brantley's boardinghouse, south of the Louisville depot, on College street, Nashville, Tuesday morning, reclining upon a bench with his hat over his face. He denied being the man until brought before Esquire Mathews, when he gave his name as Peter Carnes. After the arrival of the train in this city Carnes was removed to New Albany. He appeared much careworn, but stepped along the street with a brisk air and an attempt at nonchalance.

THE SOUTH.

—Next week Nashville will be within ten hours' ride of Memphis.

—Tennessee rejoiced in a general rain Tuesday.

—Weather in Jackson, Miss., more pleasant, and but one death from cholera last week.

—Capt. J. M. Edwards, a highly respected citizen of Yazoo county, Miss., is dead.

—John Happy, of the Nashville Banner, has evidently played "keerds." He heads a leading editorial the "Ace of Clubs," and has another "trump" paragraph to this effect:

We protest against the cruel joke of the press of other States speaking of "the election in Tennessee." There is no such thing as "election" in this State. To elect is to choose, and the people have no choice in the matter. It's a plain case of "Brown-low—Jack-and-the-Game," with a "cold-deck," and the cards all marked on the backs.

—An incident occurred recently at the Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs, Virginia, that illustrates the independent spirit of the Southern women. The head steward belonging to the immense hotel of the Springs dressed himself from top to toe, and presented himself in the ball-room to dance with the numerous guests there assembled. The proprietor immediately ordered him out and demanded what such conduct meant. The negro rebelled, it meant equality, and if he was not received into the ball-room, he and every other servant in the establishment would leave. The lady visitors heard the circumstance, called on the proprietor and told him to dismiss every servant in the house promptly, and they would serve in their places until he could procure others. He did so, and the ladies from every part of the South sojourning at this justly popular watering place went into the kitchen, chambers, laundry, dining-room, etc., and filled with perfect satisfaction every position until the proprietor went to Charlottesville and procured other servants. These are unembellished facts.

—Alabama has 20,000 acres of sweet potatoes.

—The cholera has disappeared in St. Francis county, Arkansas.

THE GRAND REGATTA TO-DAY.—All boats will report to Captain Sherntou, of the Louisville Barge Club, by 12 o'clock (noon), at the foot of Sixth street. Capt. Sheraton will act as Commodore over the fleet, which will form in line at 2 o'clock precisely. The fleet will move up the river to the Silver Springs, where the Barge Club will serve a lunch to their guests, then return to within a mile of Jeffersonville, where all the skiffs intending to contest for the prize will halt. The non-contending portion of the fleet will move down to the foot of the island—then the signal will be given on board of the Susie Summerfield, at 6 o'clock P. M., when the race will take place. After the race, the whole fleet will proceed down the river to the foot of Sixth street, where the flag will be presented to the winning boat, and then the fleet will be dismissed.

ARRESTED FOR CARRYING OFF A STILL.—Yesterday morning officer Thos. Slater committed to jail Mitchell Green, a white boy, for stealing a whisky still. The facts were about these: A copper whisky still had been seized upon by the Government, and was placed at the custom house. Yesterday morning Mitchell Green went there with express wagon No. 398, ordered the driver to put the still in the wagon, which he did. The two started up the street, and, not being able to sell the still, the driver of the wagon became frightened and returned the still to the custom house. The facts being made known to the police, Green was arrested by officer Thomas Slater.

R. H. HUFF.—Our article of yesterday perhaps did this individual some injustice. The check drawn by him on the Citizens' Bank and cashed by James Kennedy was taken up by himself before any arrest was made. So the transaction was without injury to any one.

LETTER FROM COL. HOBSON.

The State Flags—Meeting of the Officers and Soldiers on 26th—The Louisville Courier—Its Character and Threats—Its Exploits in the Confederacy—The Object of the Committee.

BOWLINGGREEN, KY., Aug. 19, 1867.

To the Editors of the Louisville Democrat:

In the issue of the Courier of the 17th inst. the editor of that paper is very much exercised over resolutions published in the Democrat, and passed at a meeting of officers and soldiers in this place on the 12th inst., at which Col. P. B. Hawkins presided, and the undersigned acted as secretary.

The omission in not stating the time and place of the meeting is of small moment. The resolutions express the objects and intentions of those participating therein; and as to the editor's readers not recognizing "any very distinguished officers or soldiers of Kentucky regiments," it certainly will be no less to the committee, and works no mortification if the editor of the Courier should remain in ignorance of their standing in the army of the United States. It is sufficient the committee think and believe to direct the attention of the Kentucky soldiers, as well as the great mass of Union soldiers and the great American heart, to the outrage the loyal soldiers of Kentucky are likely to receive at the hands of those who have acted with the mad disloyalists in the late war—those who then tried to trample upon their country's flag, and now claim to be patriots and the custodians of their regimental colors—"such patriots, too," as the editor of the Courier writes, "the latches of whose shoes the committee are unworthy to loose." When this editor learns and can be made to understand that the proud record of every private soldier was to fight for his country's honor, and he who followed the flag of his regiment on the battle-field in the struggle for the life of the Union, the preservation of law and the supremacy of the Government" are much too good to have the latches of their shoes unloosed by such patriots.

This champion of the quill—this editor of the Louisville-Bowlinggreen-Nashville-Chattanooga-Atlanta Courier—has not forgotten his old, stale, oft-repeated bragadocia threats, that they, the committee, if they do not heed it—do not heed him, the great dirt-eating editor—"will find themselves in a difficulty far more serious than any into which their military ardor ever took them."

Oh, valiant Knight of Crawfish, whose exploits during the great struggle were ever on the backward for a safe position. To secure his scalp, he forgets the meat (the dirt) he feeds on. He will do nothing himself, but threatens that, by the hands of others (not his forsooth), the committee will be in a bad fix.

The valiant editor's courage now smells and smacks of the same bold spirit as when he was not with his brave men in the rifle pits—nor in the front lines of skirmishers, or with a musket with buck and ball, or an Enfield to his shoulder; nor astride of two Parrott sixes, battling for his cause—but, alas! ensconced in the rear of the hosts of generous, high-souled men, who were offering up their lives a sacrifice to a mistaken and ill-advised attempt to destroy a good government. Many sad warnings does this editor receive in his dreams—when he is reminded of the valor he has caused to be slain on the field. Many a bitter tear has he caused to be shed—his fingers ends are dripping—dripping with innocent blood—he is anxious for more. He is astride of a Rodman now.

The committee are prompted by noble and patriotic feelings in desiring to have the flags of their regiments withdrawn from the capital at Frankfort, and placed in the care and keeping of the General Government.

They make no apologies for the part they took in the struggle. They stood up in a fair field, man to man, under their leaders, and, with their comrades, won honors and victories that make up the history of this great nation. They would not then stoop to conquer. Nor are they so ill advised as to play the guerrilla and robber—characters the editor of the Courier advised, advocated and encouraged during the war—in attacking the capitol or the archives of the State, compelling the valuables to be withdrawn therefrom, as its party has made it necessary for our honor or credit to withdraw the flags. They will, like honorable men, press upon the minds of the soldiers, and the noble Union men of the nation, the necessity of better custodians than those selected in the late election. Custodians—men loyal to the Government, loyal to the flag of our fathers, and loyal to the battle-flags of the brave Kentucky regiments.

We have said more of the editor than we desired, but his contemptible threat should excite in him an apprehension that will shake him in his boots.

W. E. HOBSON,
Chairman of the Committee.

THE BATTLE-FLAGS OF KENTUCKY.

The Meeting in Barren—The Removal of the Flags—Union Men to Have the Care of Union Flags—Delegates Appointed to the Louisville Convention of August 26.

WHEREAS, The late election for Governor of the State of Kentucky resulted in the election of a man whose whole political sympathies and aid, during the late war, were known by us to be in favor and harmony with the party who inaugurated and carried on the rebellion against the Government of the United States, and whose avowed purposes were to destroy said Government, by waging and prosecuting a wicked war against it, setting at defiance her laws and power, seizing her public property and firing upon the national flag, so dear to us and all lovers of liberty and the American Union; believing that our flags of Kentucky, which were placed in the capitol of our State for safety, will not receive that respect due them from the late elected Governor and his confederates, they being the party who made war upon these emblems of our glory, honor and purity, and whose shot and shell pierced them with many holes; being not willing to see these war-worn, shot-and-shell riddled flags thus pass from loyal to disloyal keeping, especially to the charge of those who tried for four long and bloody years of war to humble and conquer them; be it therefore

Resolved, That the following late Federal officers and soldiers of Barren county be appointed delegates to represent the late Federal officers and soldiers of the various regiments for said county, viz: W. T. Hobbitzell, J. C. Evans, C. T. Bybu, J. M. Simmons, W. H. Hall, Samuel Martiu, R. C. Hayslip, P. P. Collier, H. A. Bybu, and all others who may see cause to attend the general convention to meet in Louisville, Ky., on the 26th inst.

Resolved, That we heartily approve the meeting in convention and the proceedings of the same, of the late Federal officers and soldiers, who met in Bowlinggreen, Ky., on the 12th inst.

Resolved, That the Louisville Democrat, the Frankfort Commonwealth, the Lexington Statesman, and all other newspapers interested for the safety of said flags, be requested to publish these resolutions.

W. T. HOBLITZELL, Chairman.
Samuel Martin, Sec'y.

A Chapter from the Working of the Present Financial System.

In conversing with a German yesterday on the financial question, he remarked that the inequality and injustice of the bond system, the Radicals are for upholding, are too glaring to be submitted to in silence. Said he, "I have a neighbor whose sole property consists of one hundred thousand dollars in five-twenties, on which he receives annually six thousand dollars in gold, and which he can sell to the brokers for about eight thousand dollars in greenbacks. He pays no State, city or county taxes. I am worth twenty thousand dollars, on which I pay State, city and county tax, and which does not yield me clear four per cent. His children and mine go to the same public school. I pay taxes to school his children, and he pays none. I pay taxes to school the children of my poor neighbors, and he pays none. And this is a Republican Government!" We are acquainted with these two German citizens, and know the statement above to be correct to the letter. Is it any wonder that the people are everywhere, with a unanimity almost unparalleled, demanding that these five-twenties shall be paid with Government money, so as not only to relieve labor and property, and business of grievous taxation, but also bring upon the tax duplicate a large amount of property now exempt from taxation, and thereby equalizing the burden?

Thomas Hines, drunk and disorderly; $5 and $300 for 60 days.

John Jordan, drunk and disorderly and carrying concealed deadly weapons; $5 and $300 for 90 days.

Saul'l Adams and Oscar Watkins, colored, disorderly conduct; Adams discharged, and Watkins $3 and $100 for 30 days.

Robert Bailey, colored, carrying concealed deadly weapons; continued to today, and $100 bond.

Robert Elliott, colored, stealing $7 from Mary Jane Heuing; bail in $500 to answer.

Richard Huff, forging the names of Strattan & Snodgrass for $55; waived an examination; $600 bail.

James Kirkpatrick, assaulting James Spaulding; continued till to-day.

Lewis James, colored, entering the house of Fred. Rupp and stealing property of value therefrom; continued to today; $1,000 bail.

Wallace Lewis, colored, stealing over $4 from Barney McElvogue; discharged.

John Young and William Cross, assaulting Henry Jackson with intent to rob; dismissed.

Served About Right.

There is one beast that the naturalists have forgotten or neglected to classify. It is the man who will beat and abuse the wife of his bosom. A wolf is his superior, while the sheep-killing dog will turn away from him with contempt—will disdain to wag his tail, however much the other beast may whistle. One of these animals—we scorn to call him man, though he wears the semblance of "the human form divine"—was presented in the City Court, yesterday morning, on a charge of abuse of family. His name is Jacob Shaeffer, and we understand he is the keeper of a small store on Madison street. The evidence elicited the fact that he has turned his home into a small "hell on earth," in which he right royally fills the role of Lucifer. His wife lives in continual fear of her life being sacrificed in some one of his moments of passion. The immediate cause of his arrest was a disturbance night before last at a late hour, in which the neighbors were aroused by the screams of the wretch's children. On investigating the cause of the uproar, it was discovered that Shaeffer was assaulting his wife, swearing he was going to kill her, that he would have her heart's blood, etc. The neighbors, properly appreciating such gallantry, sent for the aid of the police to quell the fellow. The officers came and placed him in the safe-keeping of a stationhouse. Yesterday morning, his Honor, fully impressed with the gravity of Shaeffer's offense, fined him $15 and required him to give bail in the sum of $100 for his good behavior towards his family for six months.

THE REGATTA.—Our citizens are promised some rare sport this afternoon, if the clerk of the weather will compliment us with a clear and pleasant sky. The regatta comes off in our harbor. Some fifteen boats have already been entered to take part in the race for the championship. The boats will start from the foot of Sixth street about 2 o'clock, and proceed to Four-mile spring, above Port Fulton. At about 4 o'clock, the boats will start from Port Fulton on the race, which will either be to the Jeffersonville ferry dock, or to the Mail Line wharfboat. We expect to see a large crowd of spectators and some fine rowing done.

WEISIGER HALL—THEATRICAL.—We take pleasure in announcing that Mr. G. B. Waldron, together with a talented theatrical company, will give two entertainments in the beautiful Weisiger Hall to-morrow and Saturday night. We promise all who go to be very highly entertained, as Mr. Waldron and his company are known to be A No. 1 in the profession.

PUMP DOCTOR, ATTENTION.—We have been requested to call the attention of the pump doctor to the pump at the corner of Fifteenth and Walnut streets, as it has been out of order for over ten days.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Ladies,

If you are afflicted with lassitude; if, on rising in the morning, you feel unrefreshed with a bad taste in the mouth; a disgust for food; a constant desire to rest, it is time something should be done to stop the growing evil. We know of no preparation more highly adapted to all afflictions of this description than

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

For mothers nursing this great tonic should always be taken, especially where the mother's nourishment is inadequate to the demands of the child, consequently her strength must yield, and here it is where a good tonic, such as HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, is needed to impart temporary

STRENGTH AND VIGOR

To the whole system. Ladies should by all means try this remedy, and before so doing, ask your physician, who, if he is acquainted with its virtues, will recommend its use in all cases. As a

MEDICAL AGENT

It has no equal, while its pleasing flavor and healthful effects have made it a general favorite. It is free from all properties calculated to impair the system, and its operations are at once mild, soothing and efficient. All who have used the Bitters

COMMERCIAL NEWS, &c.

By Atlantic Cable.

LIVERPOOL, August 21.

The important suit of the West India and Pacific Steamship Company vs. A. S. Williams and Union Jurat, first tried in the Liverpool Court of Assize, has resulted in judgment for the plaintiffs with damages assessed at £13,000. This suit grew out of nitro-glycerine at Aspinwall, on April 3, 1866, by which the steamship European, belonging to plaintiffs, was totally destroyed while lying at the above-named port. The explosion also resulted in a loss of 60 lives, including those of the captain and other officers of the steamer.

The Caribbean, of the same line, also sustained serious damages. The ship was valued at from £20,000 to £40,000. The cargo was insured for about £80,000. The damages to the Caribbean were estimated at nearly £10,000. The owners of several buildings on shore which were demolished put in their claims for damages to a considerable amount additional. The underwriters declined to make good the losses, and threw the responsibility upon the owners of the European, on the ground that they were culpable in carrying explosive material on the vessel, and that below the deck.

The plaintiffs in turn brought suit against Williams & Guion, as shippers of nitro-glycerine, claiming that they were guilty of deception in shipping that article under the name of Glorsin oil, a substance unknown to chemists or to commerce, and thus involved plaintiffs in their great losses and liabilities.

The defendants replied that they had acted in the matter only as forwarders, and that the explosive material came to them from a Hamburg house, with instructions to forward to Neil A Son, bondsmen, via plaintiffs' lines, that they were themselves deceived by the description title of the Glorain oil in the manifest, and had no knowledge nor suspicion of the dangerous character of the freight which thus passed through their hands in the usual course of their business. The judgment rendered is understood to definitely settle the fact that the plaintiffs are entitled to damages, and cannot recover their losses from the underwriters, but the question whether the defendants are ultimately liable, or whether the plaintiffs must look to the original shippers at Hamburg, goes to a higher tribunal for argument and decision.

Parliament was prorogued to-day. The Queen was not present, and the speech was read by commission. The Queen declares there is no longer any grounds for apprehension of war in Europe. The treasonable conspiracy in Ireland has proved futile and the attempt at revolt suppressed almost without bloodshed by the valor of the troops, the vigilance and activity of the police and the general loyalty of the people, and the law has been vindicated without sacrifice of human life.

The speech refers with satisfaction to the new postal treaty with the United States, and in conclusion congratulates Parliament and the country on the completion of the Canadian Union, the passage of the reform bill and adoption of other measures beneficial to the United Kingdom.

Probable Removal of Gen. Sickles.

Talk of Removing Gen. Howard.

MORE SYMPATHY FOR STANTON.

Soldiers' Union Refuse to Indorse Grant.

NEW YORK, August 21.

The Herald's special says that General Sickles is likely to be the next victim of the Presidential guillotine, owing to his interference with the mandates of the United States Supreme Court in Washington, N. C., and ordering his subordinates to give no heed to the order of the United States Attorney General to the United States Marshal to prosecute criminally all parties obstructing the execution of the process of the Supreme Court. Gen. Sickles, it is understood, takes the ground that, if the Federal courts are permitted to enforce their decisions in his district, they may very soon declare the reconstruction acts unconstitutional and void. It is said Gen. Sickles has written a spicy letter to Gen. Grant on the subject.

The Times' special says it is extremely probable that Gen'l Howard will shortly be relieved from duty as commissioner of the freedmen's bureau, and mustered out of his volunteer rank, which will leave him Brigadier General in the regular army. An officer not higher in rank than Colonel will probably be assigned to the bureau. The names of Rordan Granger is prominently mentioned. He is Colonel of one of the new infantry regiments, but has never joined his command.

The Tribune's special says at the meeting of the Washington Soldiers' Union, which adopted the resolutions denouncing the President's action in removing Stanton, the following resolution was rejected, on the ground that, as no one knows how Grant stood, it would not do to indorse him:

Resolved, That, appreciating the supreme duty which rests upon a soldier, of promptly obeying the lawful commands of his superior officers, and looking upon the assignment of Gen. Grant as Secretary of War, ad interim, in the nature of a military order from the Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy, not to be disregarded, although disapproving, without insubordination, we indorse Gen. Grant's action in the premises, and congratulate the country on having as the successor of Stanton, one who is his proved friend, faithful supporter and unqualified indorser.

WASHINGTON, August 21.

Gen. Grant to-day, acting Secretary of War, issued an order mustering out seven additional paymasters, to take effect the 1st of October. The programme seems to be to dispense with all officers not in the regular army.

KANSAS CAVALRY IN PURSUIT

Cheyennes to attack the Pawnees.

Laying the Corner-stone of the Cameron Railroad Bridge.

ST. LOUIS, August 21.

A dispatch from Fort Hays, the 14th, says the Indians are among us, shooting every man that ventures out of camp. They have taken all the stock in this vicinity and stopped the work on the railroad beyond here.

About three hundred Kansas cavalry and thirty regulars started to-day for an Indian village on Saline river, with a view of destroying it. The savages are constantly menacing us, and the Captain commanding here has barely men enough to hold the fort.

This part of Kansas will have to be abandoned unless more troops are sent to protect us. Four Indians, captured in the late fight between the Pawnees and Cheyennes, at Plum creek, state that it was the intention of the Cheyennes to attack the train at Elm creek, throw it off the track and plunder it. The Cheyennes are expected to return with a larger force soon and renew the attack.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., August 21.

The corner-stone of the Cameron railroad bridge, across the river at this point, was laid this afternoon with Masonic ceremonies, under the immediate direction of John D. Vincle, Grand Master, amid great enthusiasm. Over 5,000 people, including delegates from Leavenworth, Wyandotte, Independence, and other towns in the vicinity, were assembled on the banks of the river to witness the ceremony. Assurance is given by Mr. Chanute, chief engineer, that the structure will be completed in one year. The bridge will be iron, 1,400 feet long, with a draw in the channel of the river 362 feet; 6 stone piers, with spans 280 feet, and have a carriage way as well as a railroad track. This bridge with the one now building across the Mississippi at Quincy, will give us through connection without breaking bulk with New York and Boston, making Kansas City a distributing point, and of considerable commercial importance.

One hundred track layers have commenced work on the Cameron railroad, and the iron is being laid at the rate of one mile a day.

Arrangements relative to the work on Kansas City and Fort Scott railroad have been brought to a final settlement, insuring the early completion of that railroad.

Wednesday Evening, August 21, 1867. }

There were indications of tightness in money matters to-day, but as the demand for currency is light and confined almost exclusively to regular business, prime commercial paper was promptly discounted at 9 per cent. at the banks. In the outside market 1 per cent. a month is the ruling rate, although a higher figure is charged where the paper does not come up to the first-class standards, though backed by unexceptionable collaterals.

Exchange is offering quite freely, buying at par and selling at 40a1-10 premium. Government securities declined sharply in New York to-day, which had the effect to still further depress the market here, which has been inactive for some time past, transactions being light and purchases being made almost exclusively for shipment to New York.

Gold opened lower in New York to-day, though the decline was unimportant, and closed at a slight advance on yesterday's quotations. There is but little offering here, the buying rate at the close of bank hours being about 140.

The following quotations, received to-day, give the course of the New York market for gold and government securities:

NEW YORK—10 A. M.—Gold opened at 141. 11 A. M.—141. 12 M.—Gold 140⅞. 3 P. M.—Gold closed at 141¼.

The 11 A. M. New York dispatch quoted government securities as follows:

Five-twenties of '81, 111; of '62, 113⅛; of '64, 109⅞; of '65, 110⅛; new issue, 107⅝; 10-40s, 102½; 7-30s, 1st series, 107; 2d and 3d series, 107.

The following were the closing quotations of this market to-day:

The Herald, of the 19th, reports New York money matters as follows:

The supply of money was superabundant throughout, and loans were made by the banks at four per cent., on government and other first-class collaterals, and passed in good credit; and at five on miscellaneous stocks. At the same time the principal dealers in governments were freely offered more than they required at three percent. This extremely easy condition of monetary affairs cannot, however, be expected to last much longer now that the Western drain of currency has set in. Remittances to the West were made from this center every day last week, and the journals at Chicago and Cincinnati confirm the fact. The loss of five millions of deposits and six and a half millions of legal tenders by the banks during the week is due mainly to this cause, although, as respects the latter, the sales of gold by the Treasury and the redemption of compound interest notes held small amounts by the banks have not been without effect. Owing to the crops being unusually heavy, it is probable that a larger amount of money than usual will be required to move them, and although we are at present glutted with currency, two or three weeks may work an important change in the state of affairs, and of this the next weekly return of the banks of this city will give us fair warning. The supply of commercial paper is rapidly increasing, and the banks are discounting the best grade at 5½ and 6 per cent. 6 being the general rate. Produce paper is regarded with distrust, owing to the belief that prices will experience a further decline as the new crops move forward, but ordinary unexceptionable paper is less closely scrutinized than it was two months ago, owing to the improved prospects of trade.

The Philadelphia Ledger, of Monday, says:

Money continues easy, and rates are unchanged. Call loans on government collateral are made at 5 @ 6 per cent., and choice double-named three and four months business paper is discounted at bank at 6 per cent., and on the street at rates ranging from 6 to 8 per cent. The market is very well supplied, in fact is running over, with a class of paper which everybody is willing to say is very good, but which very many banks and private leaders he-itate about discounting. The reasons for a refusal to purchase any given name are, of course, rarely given, and, in fact, often could not readily be given, were they stated. The enlightened passed is based upon impressions gathered from various sources, and its value and reliability is usually pretty well ascertained. The merchant who is known to be of the highest character, personally, and who is generally believed to have kept himself clear of the entanglements of outside speculations, will often find his paper readily accepted, when the notes of even probably richer men, who hardly come up to the mark in respect to the points just indicated, are refused.

In regard to money and business, the Chicago Times, of Tuesday, says:

There are no new features to note in business matters to-day. The receipts of produce continue large, and, while there is no special degree of activity to report, it is evident to careful observers that the general business of the city is undergoing a gradual improvement. The demand for money from the country still continues, and, although we see nothing going to show that it has increased, it still bids fair to reduce the supply of currency to such a point that local borrowers will stand a slim chance of procuring money. The amount of capital now employed in shipments of produce is larger than most people imagine. We do not remember of a time when the shipments of grain were so large, in proportion to the amount of grain here ready to go forward, and with wheat at $1 75, corn at 95c, and oats at 58c, a few cargoes of grain aboard capital very fast.

In regard to the present and the immediate future of the money market, the New York Commercial and Financial Chronicle, of the 17th, says:

In the financial situation there is very little to attract attention by the charm of novelty. The great question just now with all classes of our business men is as to the probable pressure of the existing scarcity of money. Our merchants, manufacturers, and even our farmers are anxious in their inquiries on this point, the last named class because they think that easy money means high prices for breadstuffs, and the others because their calculations for an active fall trade depend on the absence of monetary stringency. Now, if by an easy money market be meant a state of things in which there is an abnormal plethora of unemployed capital, and a consequent depression of the rate of interest to 3 or 4 per cent., then, in our opinion, it is neither desirable nor probable that it will continue. From well-known causes our money market seldom happens at this time of the year, is in this condition, which, in its nature, can only be temporary in a country which offers so vast and so inviting a field for the use of floating and fixed capital as ours. It, however, the phrases "easy money market" be understood in its true meaning as a state of things where good borrowers can obtain on good securities any amount of legitimate accommodation on terms ranging fairly below than above the average rates of legal interest, then it is not unlikely that we shall for sometime to come enjoy whatever stimulus such an "easy money market" can give to our trade. In fever of this anticipation we will just hint at a few of the reasons which might be urged.

First, there is not only an abundance of disposable capital seeking investment in all the great financial centers of this country, but this aggregate is swelled by large accessions of foreign capital, which is driven from the British and other European markets by the long continued stagnation that has set in upon most of the usual outlets for the temporary employment of floating balances, on satisfactory terms.

Secondly—There is little doubt that, so far as England is concerned, the tendency of capital will still be to emigrate to this country. The monetary paralysis which has been developed there is one of the sequels of the panic of 1866, that may perhaps prove difficult of cure. Confidence was completely prostrated a year ago in the money markets throughout Great Britain. When just on the point of reviving, it suffered a severe relapse from the malign influence of the mimatory war cloud which overspreads Europe, and from vague fears as to the new reform bill which, giving the voting power of England to two millions of voices, instead of to 1,200,000, threatens, as is supposed, the safeguards, the security, and some of the rights of property. To us at this distance it seems as if both these vague terrors which depress the London money market are imaginary, and will soon prove themselves so. But in all countries capital is proverbially timid, and British capital loses its timidity very slowly. It is, therefore, not improbable that, for several months to come, our money market will continue to flow moderately. Shortly after the 1st of January, 1868, the Bank of England will have arrived at a turning point beyond which we have less to fear, as our more pressing monetary wants will have been provided for, and the crops will, for the most part, have come forward.

If, however, so far as the supplies of capital are concerned, we seem to have all the conditions of financial ease, there is enough of doubt in other quarters, for if our currency should suffer any sudden changes from spasmodic contraction, or if the buoyancy of public confidence should receive a check from some political, financial or other cause, a state of things might come about which would disturb all calculations of financial quiet or industrial stability. The defalcation which was reported yesterday in the Tradesman's Bank, though comparatively small in amount and importance, is one of a series of frauds which have become too numerous of late, and if followed by others might aid in producing a sensitive and dangerous state of public distrust.

In general merchandise the market to-day exhibited no features demanding extended notice. The continued receipts of goods gives an air of business along Main street, but the outward flow is, as yet, restricted, there being but few buyers in the market, and orders are for immediate wants. The opinion generally prevails throughout the country that prices will decline, and buyers are holding off until the bottom is touched. The dry goods trade is still inactive, though some improvement is noticeable, and prices are steady. The New York Commercial Bulletin, of the 19th, says:

The dry goods market continues active to day in all departments, although there is little or no speculation observed. The trade is legitimate and for the active wants of the country, and the caution of the past two seasons is still closely observed on all hands.

Stocks of goods are fair, but not large, and at present there seems a probability of a steady, healthy business, with but little of the fluctuations which past seasons have witnessed. Prices are steadily held by all parties to-day.

Brown and bleached domestics are particularly in request by jobbers and commission houses, without change in prices.

Muslin delaines are in very attractive assortment and a good business is doing. Prices are the same as at the opening of the new goods, with a tendency to greater firmness.

Shawls are in attractive styles and large assortments, but trade is yet slow.

Foreign goods are more active than for some time, but there is less disposition to take large lots than in the market for domestic goods.

The general feeling in the dry goods trade, to which reference has often been made, that the business of the present season would be fair in amount and also in its profits, continues to prevail. Business is done for cash or on short time, and with the prospect of more abundant money in the hands of consumers throughout the country. It would seem that much confidence on the part of holders is warranted.

In boots and shoes there is increasing activity, and stocks are being rapidly replenished. Prices are steady and the market has decided firmness in its tone. The Shipping List of Saturday, in referring to the Boston market, says:

The trade in boots and shoes continues as active as previously noticed. Quite a number of the smaller buyers are in town and the jobbing houses are quite busy in consequence. Many of this class of trade also purchase of the wholesale houses, and in connection with the goods sent off on orders taken within the past two months, the trade presents quite a lively appearance. There has been more inquiry during the week for men's shoes, and the only goods that are decidedly quiet are women's light goods. The quantity going forward continues to exceed even the large shipments of last year, but prices are not satisfactory, and the average profit is said to be quite small. It appears, however, that the trade is as prosperous as could be expected, and will compare favorably with any branch of our manufacture. We are now fast returning to the old order of things. Large profits are now out of the question, and favorable returns now depend more particularly on close calculation and economy in the general management. Most of the manufacturers are now ordered ahead for all the boots they can make for the next thirty days, and therefore are unwilling to make new contracts except at passing prices. In the upper leather market there is a weaker feeling, and if there were large stocks of goods on hand, prices would with difficulty be sustained.

Flour was firm to-day, and there is an upward tendency in prices. This, however, is confined to higher grades. Stocks are fair, and the local shipping demand fully up to the expectations of dealers. The city mills are all in full daylight operation, and their product is readily sold in the city trade. Their choice brands are of an excellent quality, among which we note the Pride of the Pantry, designed by the Beargrass mill to equal any flour manufactured in the country.

The tone of the dispatches to-day was calculated to stiffen prices for corn, oats and wheat, as a slight advance is noticeable in several trade centers. Mixed and white corn is held here at 95ca$1 00, sacks included. Oats are firm, with a moderate demand. Rye is a shade higher, though the offerings are light. Barley is in fair demand and steady. Wheat is firm, and dealers quote the range from $1 80a2 10 for red and white. The tendency of the wheat market is, evidently, to higher prices. We regard any advance upon present quotations as temporary and of short duration.

With reference to the European markets, the Loudon correspondent of the Commercial and Financial Chronicle, under the date of August 31, says:

The weather of the week just concluding, though not of a genial character, or of a nature calculated to mature the growing crops, has not been sufficiently unfavorable to cause alarm in reference to our agricultural prospects. In my last letter I mentioned the circumstance that a very heavy rain had done considerable injury, not only in lay ing the crops, but in delaying the harvest all over the greater part of the country. I am glad to say that so far we have had no repetition of such unfavorable weather, and although the crops were much laid in many parts, the damage sustained has not been sufficiently extensive to produce any uneasiness regarding the total yield of wheat in this country. Undoubtedly, the prospect is not so encouraging as it was a few weeks since; but, at the same time, the appears to be nothing at present sufficiently unsatisfactory to justify any unfavorable conclusions. And such been the case, the price of wheat must have risen materially; but during the past week the tendency of the trade has been towards an easier range of values. It was mentioned in my last letter that the heavy rain had caused wheat to advance 1s to 2s per quarter. On Monday last this advance was not supported; while on Wednesday, owing to the magnificent weather which then prevailed, the quotations had a decided drooping tendency. During the last few days the weather has been cloudy and cold, with, considering the period of the year, bitter easterly winds. These cold winds, however, have not created any actual damage; but they have delayed the general commencement of harvest work, which, under the existing circumstances, is likely to have, and has had, a material influence on prices. I need scarcely again remind your readers that our supplies of home grown produce are unusually small, much smaller than in former years. Consequently, while our imports of wheat can scarcely be considered large, any delay that takes place in harvesting the crops renders the supply of produce available for consumption less extensive, and therefore produces much firmness in the trade. Although harvest work is considered to be in progress, such can hardly be looked upon as being the case in a commercial point of view, the cutting of wheat being confined to very forward districts. Should, however, fine weather prevail, we may expect that the crops will now be got in as rapidly as the labor at command will allow.

In France, although the prospects were considered to be very favorable, the result, so far as regards the middle and southern provinces are concerned—those in which the harvest is now almost completed—has not come up to the expectations previously entertained. The result, however, is not discouraging, because there appears to be an average crop; nevertheless, as it was anticipated that the yield would have been above the average, some disappointment has been occasioned. In consequence of this circumstance, and of a heavy rain in the northern provinces, the wheat trade in France has been firmer, and prices have risen to a slight extent. In Prussia heavy floods, chiefly in the neighborhood of Dantzic, have produced more firmness in the wheat trade; but the advance established on the 7th inst. was not fully maintained on the 14th inst. In Russia, Austria and Turkey the harvest is progressing favorably, and in Spain the crops are reported to be abundant. Taking all these circumstances into consideration, we may conclude that, on the whole, are satisfactory.

The value of cotton continues to give way; not, however, arising out of a depressed trade, caused by a restricted demand, but by a desire on the part of holders to meet the views of buyers. The prospect of a good crop in the United States and India, and, so far as can be ascertained in Brazil and Egypt, is undoubtedly the leading cause of the continued downward movement in the value of this staple. The greatest fall is in Egyptian cotton, in consequence of considerable pressure having been shown to sell. The total sales of cotton at Liverpool during the week amount to 59,690 bales, of which quantity the trade have taken 10,680 bales. In the wool trade there is a fair degree of steadiness, but no activity. The public sales of colonial will shortly be commenced, and it is estimated that during their progress about 140,000 bales will be brought forward. The iron trade remains extremely quiet.

The provision market is steady, with a fair demand. Mess pork is in light demand at $23 75 in lots. The market for bacon is firm, with an upward tendency, and clear sides are firm at 16c in lots and 16½a16¾c on orders. Shoulders are selling freely at 12½c packed. Hams are steady. Lard is unchanged. Messrs. Kercheval & Son, of St. Louis, in their circular of Saturday, remark:

Provisions—The market, though comparatively quiet, has been strong, with an upward tendency in prices, and closes with great firmness, at the same time it is evident that buyers, unless speculative operators, are disposed to stand off and await the developments of the next few weeks, before again going heavily into stock. The development of the past week, though confirming the previous estimates of comparatively light stocks shows that the statements, as made up by the most observant operators, and widely disseminated among the trade, are rather under than above the quantity likely to be on sale in Chicago, where the stock of odds and ends for several weeks has been reported as exhausted, and where there has been no acknowledged opportunity of replenishing by summer cure, it seems that there are "a few more left"—that 200,000, if not 300,000, pounds clear sides have, within the past few days, been purchased in the market—that there are other lots on offer "out of market"—that 1,000 barrels mess pork, and about an equal number of tierces of lard, not heretofore estimated, have been taken at Springfield, Illinois, for New Orleans—that some 65,000 pounds ribsides have been purchased in Peoria, for smoking at this place—and that 20,000 pieces hams and shoulders, at Alexandria, heretofore lost sight of, have appeared for sale.

Such overnights are, of course, unavoidable—particularly in a country where the trade is so widely extended, and where there is not only so little attention paid to the collection of proper statistics, but where the inducements to withhold complete statements of stocks are so strong; and they should be regarded as merely incidents occurrences in a trade which, through its leading importance, is yet undeveloped, and of course not reduced into perfect shape. The advices from leading markets, though showing considerable activity, indicate activity. New Orleans, though calculating on a consumption rapidly upon her receipts, and certainly progressing to a position where supplies will be limited to receipts, does not respond fully to the advances at the West, and yet those having familiarity with her trade, have confidence in an early improvement there, and are steadily preparing themselves for the coming trade. From the other portions of the South, particularly from Mobile, orders are almost of daily occurrence, and usually for small quantities, but without limit in prices. At Louisville the trade, as found at this season, is comparatively light, the market is firm at prices fully up to the average of other Western points. At Cincinnati and New York the trade has been somewhat irregular—occasionally speculative; nevertheless transactions appear to be restricted; and it would seem that, whilst holders have confidence, and are unwilling to sell, except in a legitimate way, to consumers, speculators are standing off, and cannot be induced to operate. The general working of the trade has been satisfactory, fully realizing the expectations of plain, practical operators, and has been remunerative to all, except "short sellers."

Daily Review of the Market.

BARGING AND ROPE—A fair commanding demand has set in and prices are steady. We quote hand-loom bagging at 23a25½c, power-loom at 24¼a25c; machine rope at 19a19½c, and hand rope at 18a19c.

BEESWAX—Is in active demand, and dealers are paying from 32c to 35c for fair to strictly prime.

BUTTER—The market is unchanged, with a fair demand for prime country butter, which continues dull from 16c to 18c.

COTTON YARNS—The market is quiet. We quote hand yarns No. 500 at 32a32½c; No. 600 at 30a32c; No. 700 at 28a27c; carpet chain at 30a36c; candlewick at 50a55c.

COPNMEAL—Prices are firm with a fair demand. We quote at $1 50a1 75, light weight, and $5a0 25 for 1 bushel barrels for kiln dried. Bolted is in light supply and firm at 90a95c per bushel.

CHEESE—The market is quiet with a moderate demand. We quote Western Reserve at 11¼a12½c; factory at 14½a15½c; pineapple at 25a30c; English dairy at 18a19c in packages.

CIDER MILLS—There is a good demand. We quote Improved Buckeye at $45 00; Kentucky $35 00; Hutchinson $26; American at $16; and improved Kentucky at $40.

CEMENT—The demand is very active, and prices are firm at $2a2 25 per bbl.

CANDLES—The market is steady. We quote tall weights 22a23c; 13 oz 18a19c; 12 oz 16½a17c; hollow candles 13a14c.

COAL—The market is firm. Dealers are loading at 14a20c afloat by barge load, and selling at retail at 24c.

EGGS—Receipts are fair for the season, and prices are steady at 12a14c in lots.

FRUIT—Prices are a shade firmer and peaches are in good demand. Apples are in
